

MORRIS FEMALE INSTITUTE.
The distinctive character of this institution consists in the high degree to which the combined superior educational advantages with the choicest home account modulations. It is, in the best sense of the term, a home school.

EDUCATIONAL ADVANTAGES.
First of all, only the most competent teachers are employed in all the departments. The labor of instruction is never committed to inexperienced hands. The principal, besides superintending all the departments of the school, gives a large share of his time to the instruction of classes, and the benefit of more than twenty years' experience in his profession. The vice-principal, a lady of culture, and of large experience as a teacher in some of our best city schools, will have the more immediate supervision of the family pupils. The mode of instruction is designed to be thorough and effective in the highest degree. Pupils will be taught first of all how to study; how to apply their minds to the best advantage in learning a lesson. Unceasing effort is made to cultivate those habits of attention and of close application which lie at the foundation of all solid attainments.

The course of study embraces all the branches of a thorough English education, combined with the polite accomplishments which, in their combination, give strength and dignity, and, at the same time, grace and elegance to woman.
Pupils are admitted to a partial, as well as the full course; but it is expected that they will pursue their studies in the order here laid down, as the systematic prosecution of study, so far as it goes, is far better than that of a haphazard, miscellaneous course which many pursue.
A multiplicity of studies at one time, more than can possibly be pursued with any profit, is not encouraged or allowed. Progress will be measured, not by the number of studies gone over in a given time, but by the thoroughness with which they are pursued.

At the close of the year, certificates are awarded to those pupils who reach the highest standard of excellence in scholarship and deportment, and also to those who excel in composition. Through the liberality of a former pupil, who has appropriated funds for this purpose, a gold medal will be awarded to the pupil who may present, at the close of the school year, the best book of original compositions, in fulfillment of the regular appointments of the year, the decision to be made by a committee appointed for this purpose.
Diplomas are conferred upon those who creditably complete the full course of study in the English department.

OPTIONAL COURSE.
No expense has been spared to secure the best instruction in music, in the modern languages, and in drawing and painting.
The department of music will be under the charge of Mr. F. G. Hiley, whose system of instruction has given the highest satisfaction. Every effort will be made by proper instruction, by careful attention to practice, and by frequent recitals, to encourage pupils to reach a high standard of excellence in musical culture.
In vocal culture, the most approved Italian method is exclusively used.

In the French department, pupils are under the charge of a native teacher, a Protestant lady, who, besides speaking with pure Parisian accent, adds to other accomplishments of high order a familiar knowledge of the English language.

FAMILY AND HOME CHARACTER OF THE SCHOOL.
As the number of boarding pupils is limited to thirty, the family organization is preserved on a scale that secures to each pupil a minute and constant attention to her wants—attention to her health, her lessons and her deportment, as well as to her studies—in her hour of exercise and recreation, as well as in the classroom and study-hall. It is the aim of the Principal to surround his pupils as much as possible with the beautiful influence and restraints of a well-regulated Christian home, taking care that this home influence, so essential to the right development of family character, shall not be diverted from its proper channel of higher educational advantages. They are received into his family on terms of perfect social equality, sitting at the same table, and working at the same family altar. In all their intercourse with each other, pupils are taught to repress selfishness, to observe a sacred regard for one another, to frequent opportunities are given for social intercourse, regulated, however, by the usages of refined society. With teachers of high social cultivation, and pupils coming from families who are accustomed to the refinements of social life, it is evident that a family thus organized must afford excellent opportunities for social improvement, and it is obvious that such a school must afford the highest facilities for general improvement.

After Dinner.
"Haven't I a right to be saucy, if I please?" asked a young lady of an old bachelor. "Ye, if you please, but not if you displease," was the answer.

It is rather remarkable that while several thousand feet are required to make one foot, a single foot, properly applied, is often sufficient to make one civil.
All bachelors are not entirely lost to the refinement of sentiment, for the following toast was lately given by one of them at a meeting of the ladies, assembled in the garden of life.
An old clergyman, spying a boy creeping through a fence, exclaimed: "What! crawling through a fence! Pigs do that." "Yes," retorted the boy, "and old bachelors go along the street."

A St. Louis paper had two columns account of a hotel of that city. The back-bugger, after reading it over carefully, held a meeting and discussed the paper for that mentioning the name.
A pious soul giving expression to his devotional feelings, in a short speech in church, said: "I shall never cease to love and love the name of my dear Savior, nor can I ever forget how his name-books in the Bible, as it is there spelled J-e-s-u-s."

A shoemaker with a literary turn of mind has the following poetical gem attached to his shop-front:
"Here lives a man who never refuses To mend all sorts of boots and shoes."

"Really, Mr. Johnson, there's no end to your wit," said a lady in the way of a compliment to a noted humorist. "Gude forbid, madam," he replied, "that I should be ever at my wife's end."

Timkins aroused his wife from a sound sleep the other night, saying that he had seen a ghost in the shape of an ass. "Oh, let me sleep," was the reply of the irate dame, "and don't be frightened at your own shadow."

An Irish boy by having driving a gentleman a long stage during torments of rain, the gentleman civilly said to him, "Paddy, are you not very wet?" "Arsh, I do care about being very wet, but please, your honor, I'm very dry."

[Notice By Request.]
The Kentucky Library are not at all speculative. The institution is chartered by the State of Kentucky, and every dollar of the profits goes to the building up of the best library in the United States. The first prize in the next drawing, which takes place Nov. 30th, is $250,000. It is a reliable institution, and some one will get that money. And that there is no doubt as to the honesty of its management we cite the fact that the best banks in Louisville endorse it, and that Governor Thomas E. Bramlette, of Louisville, is the general manager. An institution so fathered is certainly deserving of confidence."

A Substitute for Quinine.
For years, quinine was regarded as the only specific for malarial diseases and immense quantities of the drug were annually consumed throughout our country. Quinine was regularly taken along the river bottoms and adjoining low lands. Within the last months malaria in all its varied forms, stalks like an epidemic throughout the land, and whole districts are prostrated with the disease. Here, quinine was regularly resorted to—but it is frequently failed to do better. It is invariably followed by the stomach, producing nausea, vomiting and gastric pain. The result is such an extent that months elapsed before the patient recovered from its effects. The objection to the use of quinine is its tendency to reduce the strength of the system, and its effect on the stomach. It is a triumph in medicine. Infinitely more certain in its beneficial effects than quinine, it possesses none of the drawbacks of that drug. Instead of nauseating, it tones and invigorates the stomach, and while expelling the malarial poison, it increases the appetite and facilitates digestion, thus rendering the system stronger and better able to resist the attacks of disease. In fact, a judicious use of this medicine is a triumph in medicine. Infinitely more certain in its beneficial effects than quinine, it possesses none of the drawbacks of that drug.
